In the House of Commons on March 21 the attack on Lord Milner, carefully planned some time ago from the Radical benches, was duly delivered. Mr W. P. Byles moved a resolution to the effect, " that this House expresses its disapproval of the conduct of Lord Miliner, as High Commissioner of South Africa and Governor of the Transvaal, in authorising the flogging of Chinese labourers in breach of the law, in violation of treaty obligations, and without the knowledge or sanction of His Majesty's Secretary of State for the Calonies. Mr Mackarness, who seconded the motion, reminded the House that the Under-Secretary for the Colonies had spoken of Lord Milner as having been guilty of a "grave dereliction of duty." and he asked members to omphasise their appreciation of this statement by voting in favour of a resolution which was directed not so much against an individual as a cortes of acts which, if condoned, might lead to the perpetration of acts of injustice in other British colonies.

LORD MILNER ATTACKED.

Mr Chamberlain who met with some unmannerly interruption, consured in scathing torms those who were persecuting a splendid record, for a single error of judgment. To condemn Lord Milner for this error, which he had frankly acknowledged and for which he had expressed regret, would be most ungenerous. The fact was the resolution was vindictive and its object was to humiliste a person of whose policy the Government d sapproved. The sup porters of the motion dered not challenge Lord Milner's policy as a whole, but they fastened on one little point, a comparatively unimportant one, in a great man's life. He repudiated indignantly the idea that Lord Milner had knowingly deceived the Government he was serving. If he were open to any such charge nothing short of impeachment would meet the neccessities of the case. Giving Lord Milner's version of the matter, he showed that the suggestion as to corporal punishment came from Mr Evans, the Protector of the Chinese, and 823 that it was accepted by the High Commissioner in the course of a conversation on a variety of topics. Too much had been made of a mistake frankly acknowledged. The amendment to the resolution standing in be the name of Mr Churchill be denounced as held in the CITY HALL on SATURDAY, a cowardly amendment, It was framed with the object of catching votes by pointing at Lord Milner without naming him. If the amendment were passed it would be knew Lord Milner's record.

Mr Churchill asked the House to subatitute for the motion an amendment condemning in general terms the flugging of Chinese coolies, but inviting members; in the interests of peace and conciliation in South Africa, to refrain from passing can-

Mr Balfour described the policy of the Gevernment as extraordinary and the protection which they accorded to Lord Milner by their ambiguous amendment as insulting. He hoped the House would not allow the Government to arrogate to them-selves the functions of the histories, and he begged it to reject with equal contempt the original motion and the amendment. The Ester lind been framed with a view to appeasing Lord Milner's friends in South Africa, of whom the Government were apparently afraid. He spoke in gloving terms of Lord Milner's great career, and deprecated vehemently this demand that judgment should be passed upon him for one single incident in that career. He implored the House not to sully the pages of its journals by recording that all it could may about one of the most eminent public servants this country had ever known was that he had committed a single error.

Amid interruption, Mr Rufus Isaacs continued the debate until midnight, when Mr Chamberlain meved the closure. This was agreed to without opposition, and then Mr Byles's resolution was negatived. The Ministerial amendment was then carried by 355 votes against 135-majority 220.-London and China Express.

CRITICISM OF KITCHENER.

phase on many many the comment of the capt LONDON, April 10 The Times publishes a long letter from its Indian special correspondent, in which the writer strongly criticizes Lord Kitchener's administration; and complains of his attitude to the Native army, which has produced discontent, unrest, and a difficulty in recruiting.

Lord Kitchener, it is stated, neglects to extend personal courtesies to Native Officers who are accustomed to such acts of consideration. The writer points to Lord Kitchener's want of knowledge of the Indian character, and his constitutional intolerance of opposition. His lordship is said to exhibit the defects of character, of which many dread the consequences in India, as being those which led to an incipient mutiny in the Sudan just before Lord Kitchener's departure to South Africa.

The correspondent makes these charges in the present situation which, he believes, is fraught with grave dangers to the interests, even the safety, of India.

Simla, April 12. In connection with Lord Kitchener's scheme, a military finance department has been established. It is under the control of Mr Bakes, she figures minister of India.

Mr Meyer is the service secretary to the department. Colonel Armstrong is his #eputy.

Captains Chandler and Ashmore are assistant secretaries. The department is civil in character, thereby guaranteeing effective control of the army purse. The violent attack in The Times on Lord Kitchener's adminstration of the native army is groundless. The recruiting difculties mentioned have been overcome. The military distribution returns disclose no regiment as being under strength, Lord Kitchener is popular with the Sepays.

TABLE DECORATION .- It is just now the fashion to decorate the dinner table with masses of flowers arranged in low vases. Sometimes vases are done away with altogether and then the decorations take the form of large rings of roses, azallas, lillies or any other flower according to the season, UNDER STRICTLY AMERICAN simply laid on the white cloth. THE PINAFORE FROCK .- The corselet skirt is now being cut with straps, to obtain pinafore effect. The upper edge of the corselet is slightly rounded and curved upward a little where the braces are joined to it, and then curves downwards beneath the arms. One woman will originally worth £20,000 is dying and gradually losing value. I myself had an old and valued pearl ring in which the pearls absolutely died away through being kept for two years or so shut away in jewel case in the dark. The thing to do with dying pearls is to wear them and thus expose them to light and air.
